2016 Casas del Toqui product-timed-pdf - Barrel Series Cabernet Sauvignon - Cachapoal Valley, Chile

Why We're Drinking It

Not only is this an incredible value, it's a world-class expression of Cabernet Sauvignon. Consumers tend to pass by Chilean wine without hesitating, but one demographic is continuously interested: the French. More specifically, the people of Bordeaux, who've shown unwavering belief in the quality of the terroir in Chile.

Tasting Notes

Dense red plum color. Ripe aromas of black fruit in a semi-sweet background. New World in style with Old World complexity and density. Round palate with cassis, blueberry, leather, and dried tobacco. Full bodied. Medium-long finish.

The Story to Know

In 1994, Chateau Larose Trintaudon, a major French wine producer from Bordeaux, partnered with a traditional winery from Chile's Totihue, and together Casas del Toqui was brought to life.

In 2010, their legacy was recaptured by the Court family who has a great passion for wine, contributing and adding their own unique and distinctive seal to the company.
